WALL PAPER!

We have as fine a stock of wall paper as can be found in this county. The designs are all this spring's styles and the prices we are offering these handsome prints at are wonderfully low. We are determined to dispose of this stock.

CARPETS AND MATTINGS.

It is time to replace that old carpet of yours with a new one Our line of carpets is the most handsome we have ever had and are admired by all who have seen them. We have held the carpet trade of this county for a number of years and our low prices and fair treatment have been steadily making this store the most popular.

We also have a very pretty line of mattings.

LACE CURTAINS.

Although the spring season has been somewhat late this year, our sale of curtains has been large. We have some excellent values yet in stock. All wishing good curtains at a low price should call.

M. C. TULIS.

A Word of Encouragement.

It is indeed a pleasure to know that such a spirit of harmony and progress prevails regarding our town schools. Our excellent board, backed by a liberal, hearty, public sentiment, seem determined to keep our schools in the very front rank.

The unanimous and hearty re-election of Prof. Bastian as principal, at a quite substantial increase of salary, shows the high appreciation in which he and his laborious and efficient work are held by both board and people.

We are sure there will be an earnest effort to secure the most efficient force of teachers possible for the places yet to be filled.

It is very encouraging to all patrons to know that "upward" is the watchword in our schools—that "from good to better" is the constant aim.

The last year's work with its excellent commencement program, our new departures in the way of a summer normal and free night schools all conducted by Prof. Bastian, are strongest evidences of enthusiastic interest, efficiency and progress, and reflect high credit on all concerned. The cost of our schools is comparatively small to the community, but the gain is great and will be still greater.

The New Fish Laws.

The following are extracts from the new fish and game laws:

Brook trout, April 15 to July 31.

Black bass, speckled bass, pike, salmon, sunfish, rock bass, June 15 to Feb. 15.

Not over 50 trout may be taken in one day by an angler.

Carp, suckers, catfish and eels may be taken in dip nets in March, April, May, October, November and December, provided, nets to span not over five feet and mesh to be one inch from knot to knot.

Fyke nets, without wings, may be used in some months for same fish, provided they bear a metallic tag with owner's name and address.

Carp, suckers, catfish and eels may be taken with seines at any time of the year, provided the mesh is not less than three-quarters of an inch from knot to knot, and the owner has filed a bond of $200 to restore alive any game fish so caught The penalty for using a seine without having filed a bond is $100.

The sale of brook trout, except from private ponds, is prohibited. Penalty, $25.

The penalty for killing any kind of fish with explosives is $100 and six months' imprisonment.

Half of the fines, in case of conviction of violating any of the fish and game laws, goes to the informer.

To Bicycle Riders.

You will please take notice that you have no legal rights on the sidewalks of Emporium, and that owing to the arrogant manner of some of your numbers in assuming rights and privileges to which they have no title, and forcing women and children into the streets, you are hereby warned that you are liable to a fine for riding on the sidewalks and that the policemen of Emporium are instructed and ordered to enforce the law.

Masonic Chapter Work and Banquet.

Last Monday afternoon and evening Emporium Chapter, No. 227, H. R. A. C., enjoyed a special session for the purpose of confirming the Chapter degrees upon a class of four. The session convined at 3.30 p. m., and continued until evening. In addition to a large number of members from this county the occasion was made especially pleasant by the attendance of many Companions from neighboring Chapters, among the number we noted: G. F. Rhode, Ridgway; C. W. Arnold, C. A. Cole, N. R. Bard, L. J. Raznor, C. W. Catlin, C. R. Bard, F. B. Todd, R. J. Mott, J. V. Otto, W. J. McGranor, C. S. King, J. H. Williams, C. O. Layman, F. E. Rowley, of Arnold Chapter, Port Allegany, and Rev. Geo. H. Marsh, Kalamazoo, Mich. At six o'clock the work was called off for an hour and all were invited to enjoy a Banquet, prepared for the occasion by the ladies of Prebyterian church. It is needless to add that the elegant repast was hugely enjoyed and promptlv despatched under the leadership of the Chapter's smallest (?) eaters, Roy Gleason, Walter Youthers, and E. C. Counsil. Returning to the Chapter rooms, greatly refreshed, the work was resumed and completed at a late hour, when the goat, that had been entertaining the small boys on the streets during the day and called in to assist upon this especial occasion, was properly groomed and dismissed and shipped to F. E. Rowley's lumber camp.

For many years there has existed a very fraternal feeling between Arnold Chapter and Emporium Chapter and upon this occasion the visiting Port Allegany Companions took occasion to express their appreciation of the close relationship that exists. In a neat speech, Companion C. W. Catlin, presnted Emporium Chapter, in behalf of Arnold Chapter, a beautiful silver water service, which was highly appreciated and accepted in the same spirit in which it was presented.

The occasion was one long to be remembered by those in attendance and was the largest assemblage of Masons held here in many years.

In addition to the resident members in attendance, the following out of town members were here to enjoy the pleasant treat: Ed. C. Counsil, Warren Dent, Dents Run; Roy Gleason, John Gleason, Walter Youthers, T. S. Patchell, S. P. Krider, Driftwood; Geo. B. Barclay, W. L. Barclay, J. Howley Baird, Chas. A. Counsil, Sinnamahoning; John E. Smith, J. H. Darren, Sterling Run; C. G. Minick, Ridgway.

Renovo's Fire Brick Plant.

The Lock Haven Express thus comments on a recent meeting of the fire brick company: An important meeting of the officers and directors of the West Branch fire brick company was held this week. The erection of the new plant on the site virtually selected some time ago is now fully decided upon and a charter will be applied for within a few weeks. The site selected for the new piant is about three-fourths of a mile from the mouth of Drury's run and not far from Renovo. The location was formerly the site of a saw mill. Manufacturers of fire brick machinery were on the ground this week and it is expected that the erection of the works will be commenced soon, in order that the works may be put in operation at as early a date as possible. The new company will have a great advantage in the fact that the works will be located such a short distance from the Philadelphia & Erie railroad. The plant the company proposes to erect will be fully as large as any of the fire brick works in Clinton county, and the capacity will be as great. The company is capitalized at $160,000. C. F. Barclay, of Sinnamahoning, is the president, B.F. Geary, of Lock Haven, secretary and Josiah Howard, of Emporium, treasurer.

The erection of this new fire brick manufactory will give employment to a large number of hands and is another indication that Clinton county is becoming what the Express years ago predicted it would be, a great fire brick manufacturing centre. The West Branch company has 50 acres of land which is underlaid with as fine a quality of clay as can be found in the state. Other companies it is stated will soon be erganized to erect fire brick plants in this section.

A MEMORABLE AND SUMPTUOUS EXPOSITION.

The Grand Bibical Spectacle—Solomon, His Temple, and the Queen of Sheba.

The Enquirer, The Commercial Tribune and other leading papers, both German and English, of Cincinati, are prolific in their praises of this new and most impressive of all spectacles, which, at an expense that would seem fabulous, the enterprising manager of John Robinson's 10 big shows combined produce this year in connection with their myraid other attractions. There is no sense so vivid, so lasting and so conclusive as the sense of seeing, and however studiously we may search the Scriptures or other sacred history, the ideas that we may form and the impressions we may receive concerning the patriarchs and sages, and the scenes, incidents and events consequent to their time, can be but fractionary and imperfect. To have reproduced those personages and events and have placed sceneogrophic effect before you; to hear Solomon re-utter his wise and prophetic words; to see in person Sheba's illustrious Queen; and the pomp and circumstance of her surroundings; to view the great Temple of Solomon, not by description, but by actual inspection; to witness personally the sumptuous and resplendent festivals of the great Solomon's court—these are the inestimable privileges which the John Robinson 10 Big Combined Shows accords its patrons in connection with the great circus, the menagerie, and the royal Roman hippodrome. The spectacle of Solomon, His Temple, and the Queen of Sheba, will be exhibited at Emporium, Fri day June 21.

McKinley Refuses to Serve a Third Term.

I regret that a suggestion of a third term has been made. I doubt whether I am called upon to give it notice. But there are now suggestions of the gravest importance before the Administration and the country, and their just consideration should not be prejudiced in the public mind by even the suspicion of the thought of a third term. In view therefore of the reiteration of the suggestion of it, I will say now, once for all, expressing a long settled conviction, that I not only am not and will not be a candidate for a third term, but would not accept a nomination for it if it was tendered me.

My only ambition is to serve through my second term to the acceptance of my countrymen, whose generous confidence I so deeply appreciate, and then with them to do my duty in the ranks of private citizenship.

Now comes a scientist with the declaration that the stomach is only a survival of man's herbivorous stage, not particularly necessary to the successful operations of one's internal economy, and a stomachless Chicago man is a living proof of the statement. If this thing goes on there will soon be no excuse for any pain but a toothache.

A committee of 14 British experts and scientists has reported, after 18 months of careful investigation, that there is no such thing as hereditary drunkenness, and that love of intoxicating liquors is in no case transmitted from parent to child. This does not lessen the reasons for temperance, but it does away with a non-scientific argument.

In 20 years Andrew Carnegie's benefactions have reached a total of $35,985,025. Since January 1 last his gifts foot up $22,827,000, an average of $195,000 a day. His gifts in America amount to $24,679,300, and in England and Scotland to $11,305,725. In th United States he has given to 86 libraries and eight colleges and in Great Britain to 23 libraries and six colleges.

The growth of the silk industry in this country during the last decade has been as remarkable as that of cotton and woolen manufactures. From 1890 to 1900 the number of spindles employed in silk factories increased from 718,000 to 1,426,000, and the number of looms from 20,800 to 48,200. It is estimated that the country now supplies nearly two-thirds of its total consumption of silks.

The rector of St. George's, a fashionable church in Brooklyn, N. Y., has deemed it necessary to issue a circular in which he announces that in future "audible courtship" will not be permitted in his church while service is in progress. He does not particularly object to such mild forms of expressing affection as the holding of hands, but the more strenuous manifestations must be reserved for less public places.

It is related by a traveler who was in Peking last winter that during the exciting times there a wealthy American suggested to Gen. Chaffee that citizens of this country might as well get a share of the loot that was being seized. He offered to pay for the transportation to New York of two splendid temple bronzes if the general would overlook their removal. "The American caught looting will be shot at once," was Chaffee's answer, and the rich man retired with what dignity he could command.

Poor old Arabi Pasha, the leader of the Egyptian rebellion of 1882, has been pardoned by the khedive and will be permitted to return from exile. Arabi came pretty close to being a patriot and a hero. Undoubtedly he would have been both had his revolution succeeded. His pardon is said to have been granted upon the advice of Lord Cromer, the British diplomatic agent. There is every reason why the British should feel grateful towards Arabi. Had it not been for his revolt they might not have the strong grip they now have upon Egypt.

It would seem as though the people of New Jersey ought to know about everything worth knowing concerning mosquitoes. A professor is giving them instructions and says—and this is a point well worth remembering—the humpbacked mosquito is perfectly harmless, and it is the mosquito with the grecian bend that raises the mischief as a malaria breeder. This should be a warning to housekeepers. If any mosquitoes come around and demand admission, just look them over to determine the shape of their backs.

Among the presents received by Mrs. McKinley during her trip to the west were an exquisitely embroidered bedspread from the Chinese residents of Los Angeles; a profusion of flowers from the women of the southern cities visited; a crate of strawberries grown near Houston, Tex.; dates grown and cured in Arizona; rare flowers from the women employed in the mint at New Orleans and a loving cup and a basket of trout from the women of Decatur, Ala., presented through two of Mrs. McKinley's former schoolmates.

The movement to erect a monument at Washington to the heroes of the revolution has taken definite form, and Gen. Breckinridge, president of the Sons of the American Revolution, has named a committee to have charge of the matter.

CONGRESS SUSTAINED.

The Supreme Court Decides the Porto Rican Question in Accordance with the President's Views.

The supreme court has broken its long silence. Decisions have been handed down in a number of the cases involving the status of the insular possessions of the United States. The administration and congress have no reason to be dissatisfied with the conclusions arrived at by the court. Though some of the cases have been decided against the government, the one which was of vital importance has been decided as the administration and the great majority of the American people wished to have it.

Five of the nine justices—Fuller, Harlan, Brewer and Peckham dissenting—are of the opinion that the Foraker act, or rather that part of it which levies customs duties, is constitutional. Congress has power to levy duties on imports from the newly acquired possessions of the United States and to collect duties in their ports on goods exported from this country. The constitutional provision that "all duties, imposts and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States" does not apply to Porto Rico or the Philippines until congress shall so direct.

This decision disposes of a good many ugly possibilities. It will not be necessary to admit duty-free the sugar and tobacco of Cuba if it should be annexed. It will not be necessary either to close the "open door" in the Philippines by imposing duties on the goods imported from foreign countries while those from the United States go in free, or to impose lower duties throughout the United States so that lower duties may be charged in the Philippines.

It is settled, furthermore, that the internal revenue duties levied on this continent will not have to be levied in Porto Rico and the Philippines, where conditions are so different from what they are here that their imposition would be inexpedient, not to say unjust. Congress may legislate for the insular possessions without being bound by any revenue provisions of the constitution. That instrument does not "follow the flag" so far as taxation is concerned, nor as regards certain political rights.

An obiter dictum of the court which no one will take exception to is to the effect that certain rights, like that of the freedom of speech and religious worship, which are in the bill of rights of the constitution, go to the new possessions with the flag and cannot be taken away by congress. Congress has no wish to take them away. The president has said expressly that these were the rights of the Filipinos and should not be violated.

Some of the cases decided by the court related to the collection of duties between the date of ratification of peace and that of the enactment of the Foraker law of last year. Here the court holds the duties were improperly collected. This is a defeat for the government, but it involves merely the refunding of some duties. The decision in the Downs case, which holds that at this time Porto Rico is a territory "appurtenant to and belonging to the United States, but not a part of the United States," is the important decision. It sustains fully the view of congress and the administration as to the status of these insular possessions.

This is a great legal victory for the president and his advisers. It is a defeat for the persons who have been making long arguments to prove that the ratification of the treaty of peace made Porto Rico and the Philippines a part of the United States and that the Foraker law was unconstitutional.—Chicago Tribune.

NOW WORLD LEADER.

America's Supremacy in Commerce and Finance an Assured Fact.

From the monthly summary of commerce and finance which is issued by the bureau of statistics of the United States treasury department the interesting and important fact appears that in the current fiscal year this country leads all other nations in the matter of exports.

During the nine months ended on March 31 the average monthly exports amounted to $124,497,853, while those of Great Britain, which are second in amount, were $117,816,246. Thus a difference of $6,681,607 a month in favor of the United States is shown. Germany is third by a long interval with monthly exports averaging $87,551,000, and France, Russia, British India, Austria-Hungary, Belgium and Italy trail along behind with amounts ranging from $56,167,000 to the credit of France, down to Italy's showing of only $20,518,000.

During the nine months the total domestic exports of the United States were $1,120,480,673, against a total of $1,060,346,214, from the United Kingdom, showing a balance of about $60,000,000 in favor of this country.

The United States has, moreover, an excess of $394,000,000 of exports over imports to its credit for the nine months, which excess is greater by $127,000,000 than that for the corresponding period of the preceding fiscal year.

Upon such conditions as these is our prosperity based.—Albany Journal.

☞A democratic paper says that McKinley's speeches are better than in the days when he talked on protection in congress. But McKinley's speeches as a congressman had the effect he desired. The success of the present tariff is a sufficient monument to the earlier addresses.—Troy Times.

A FALSE PROPHET'S END.

Political Dishonesty of Bryan Now No Longer a Matter of Doubt.

Col. Bryan seems to have finally abandoned his pet silver issue, for in a late interview he is reported as saying that "it matters not whether we have more silver than gold or more gold than silver, but we must have money enough to meet the demands of an unrestricted commerce." Apparently he concedes that there is enough now. At any rate, at the close of 1900, including the money in the United States treasury, there was $30.66 per capita, as against $26.91 in 1890 and $18.58 in 1873, when silver was at a premium in gold and the "crime of 1873" was committed. The explanation, of course, is a very simple one, and familiar to everybody. The annual product of gold is now larger than the combined product of silver and gold prior to 1890, and the resulting coin is abundant for the necessities of commerce. There are no means that we know of to determine the amount of actual money used per $1,000 of "cash" transactions, but everyone knows that the use of checks is increasing so rapidly, even in country districts, that the demands of commerce, as expressed by the ratio of money really used to money nominally used, must be rapidly decreasing.

There could be no fault found with even this late conversion of Mr. Bryan did it not prove two things. First, his political dishonesty in clamoring for the free silver plank in 1900, and, second, his determination that there shall be no reconciliation of the wings of the democratic party, except on terms dictated by himself and involving his retention in office as party dictator. Nothing has taken place since last November to change the silver situation or throw more light upon it. It was plain before election that he had ceased to believe in the free silver dogma, and yet would not acknowledge his conversion. His present utterances afford positive proof that the last year or two of his silver campaign was an attempt to deceive the people, not only as to their interests, but as to his belief. His late recantation, of course, does not of itself prove that he is determined to rule or ruin his party, but, taken in connection with his other utterances and his well-known attitude toward other democratic leaders, it shows that he has determined to abandon the free silver issue, but to substitute in its place all the odds and ends of communism and anarchy which can be picked out of the platforms of 1896 and 1900, and upon that basis gather the largest following which he can secure from the democratic party or elsewhere. It is now hard to see how there can be any other outcome than the formal repudiation of Bryan by the democrats and his disappearance from politics, except as a minor political and social agitator.—San Francisco Chronicle.

WILL NOT BACK DOWN.

Senator McLaurin Demonstrates His Views of National Progression.

United States Senator McLaurin, of South Carolina, does not flinch under fire. And few public men have been exposed to fiercer attacks than he has experienced since he announced his intention to forsake the Bryanized democracy of the south, with its intense Bourbonism, and come out for progress and modern methods. He has been abused as a traitor to his party and his section, maligned, ridiculed and misrepresented in every way.

Wednesday Senator McLaurin made the first formal presentation of his views on the national issues now occupying the attention of the people. He spoke at Greenville, S. C., to a large assemblage, including many business men, lawyers and others. It seems to have been an occasion of more than ordinary interest, and th speech was evidently regarded as one certain to have most important results. Senator McLaurin spoke with great frankness, and there was no mistaking his meaning. In defining his attitude toward the democratic party he said:

"I say that any man, on domestic problems, problems of internal concern, should, as far as possible, bow to the behests of his party. If he cannot agree with his party on questions of this kind he should, if possible, find a party with which he is in accord. I assert, fellow citizens, however, that it is almost a crime for any party to make great, broad, nonpolitical American measures, involving the political and commercial development of the nation, the test of party fealty. Issues essential to the maintenance of the honor and prestige of the nation are too vital to be relegated to the plane of partisan and sectional contention. Believing, as I do, that there are vital issues which, growing out of changed industrial conditions, are higher and broader than mere party questions, I have, as your senator, looking beyond the line marked by sectionalism and partisanship, striven to promote the material, political and commercial interests of our common country—for in so doing I can best serve the interests of the state of South Carolina."

The senator by way of further explanation told how, rather than create trouble in democratic ranks, he had, though differing from them as to the wisdom of the course pursued, fallen in line and followed the lead of "Jones, Tillman, Pettigrew and company," but became tired of it, and finally forsook them. Now he owes allegiance to no democratic boss, and is supporting only such policies as he believes will promote the welfare of the country. Logically, therefore, he is for expansion, for protection, for subsidies to American ships and for anything that can advance the commerce and prosperity of the United States. He cannot be for them and remain a political bourbon and a Bryanite. And this is sound and wholesome talk to southern people, who have, if possible, more to secure through the maintenance of these progressive policies than the residents of any other part of the country.—Troy Times.

CARNEGIE IN LONDON.

He Predicts That the Continental Powers Will Combine to Smash up England.

London, June 5.—"Mark my words," said Mr. Andrew Carnegie last night to a representative of the Associated Press, "the time is coming when the continental powers will combine to smash up this little island of Great Britain. When that happens, she will have to turn to the United States for help.

"I feel certain it will not be refused. The United States will step in and say 'Don't.' They will act just as Great Britain did in the Spanish-American war. What she did then was great, and it is not half realized yet."

When Mr. Carnegie gave utterance to these sentences he was in the Langham hotel, London, where he had arrived from Scotland for the chamber of commerce gatherings. Until last night he had steadfastly refused to be interviewed.

Resuming the topic of Anglo-American relations, Mr. Carnegie said:

"I believe in the community of the British-speaking races, by which I mean that the Americans and the British are now closer than ever before. Could you get a better instance than the visit of the delegates of the New York chamber of commerce to Windsor last Saturday? I suggested it, and King Edward took up the idea thoroughly. It was a fitting commencement of the new reign.

"I know how deeply interested King Edward is in the United States. I have known this since the time, years ago, when I drove him on a locomotive in the United States, which, by the way, he did not forget when we met under different circumstances.

"The idea that the visit of our delegates to Windsor can be in any way construed as King Edward's recognition of American commercial superiority is all nonsense. The king is full of tact and of friendship for our country."

"Do you think," Mr. Carnegie was asked, "that British enterprise can be sufficiently stimulated to meet American competition?"

"Oh, they can't compete with us," replied Mr. Carnegie with a smile.

"Would you advise the British people to place their faith in combinations?" said the interviewer.

"I'm out of business," responded Mr. Carnegie, "and I know nothing about combinations."

When questioned regarding his recent gift to the universities of Scotland, he said:

"Everything will be settled shortly in a way satisfactory to both sides. The high Scotch officials and myself are still having conferences to arrange matters.

When asked if he contemplated further gifts, he replied in the negative.

Mr. Carnegie is well and is greatly pleased at the reception given to the delegates of the New York chamber of commerce.

STEAMERS RACE.

The City of Erie Beats the Tashmoo by Forty-five Seconds.

Cleveland, June 5.—The racing steamers City of Erie, of the Cleveland & Buffalo Transit Co., and the Tashmoo, of the White Star Line, got away yesterday morning, the weather being clear and the lake calm.

The boats started abreast at the half-mile line to the westward of the stake-boat. When they went across the line the Erie was a length ahead and was gaining steadily. The Erie crossed the line at 9:35, with the Tashmoo a length astern of her. By the time the boats had reached Willson avenue, the Erie had gained a further lead, and had left her opponent three lengths in the rear.

At about 10 o'clock the official timers returned to shore, coming in on the tug Frank W., of the Great Lakes Towing Co., which had been used as the stake boat. They gave the official time as follows: The Erie crossed the line at 9:37:56 and the Tashmoo at 9:38:31.

CHARGES SUSTAINED.

George D. Herron, Former Professor of Applied Christianity Forced Out of His Church.

Des Moines, Ia., June 5.—George D. Herron, former professor of applied Christianity in Iowa college, at Grinnell, is no longer a Congregationalist. He was tried by a council of ministers and elders of the church representing eight organizations, sitting at Grinnell yesterday, on the charge of "conduct unbecoming a Christian and a gentleman."

Evidence was introduced to show cruel treatment of his "unusually loyal and devoted wife," which finally resulted in divorce proceedings and legal separation. A lengthy letter from Dr. Herron was presented in his defense, but at the close of it's consideration the council decided that the charges were sustained and voted unanimously to expel him from the church.

No Extra Session Needed.

Washington, June 5.—The cabinet yesterday decided that existing conditions did not warrant the calling of an extra session of congress this summer. Secretary Root and Attorney General Knox rendered legal opinions to the effect that the authority to govern the Philippines vested in the president by the Spooner amendment was ample. Those opinions were concurred in by all the members of the cabinet.

Reception to New Yorkers.

London, June 5.—The reception tendered to-night by Mr. Choate to the delegates of the New York chamber of commerce drew a crowd of celebrities to Carlton house terrace. Leaders of the bar, finance, diplomacy and polities attended to do honor to the Americans. Lord Lansdowne, the foreign secretary, as the chief representative of the British government; J. Pierpont Morgan, Andrew Carnegie and Maitre Labori, the distinguished French advocate, were centers of admiring groups throughout the evening.

'Twas Johnson.

It was in Magistrate Brann's court a few days ago. A frail little white woman had her husband, a strong, big negro, up for non-support. She said that he would not support her, because he was jealous of another man, who had paid her some attention. The magistrate heard the story, and then turned toward the prisoner and asked:

"Well, Mr. Othello, what have you to say to that?"

The policeman who made the arrest leaned over and whispered to the magistrate:

"His name isn't Othello, your honor," he said. "It's Johnson."—N. Y. Sun.

Water Colors, of Course.

Lady (who has pestered artist with questions for hours—All your marine pictures represent the sea as being calm. Why don't you paint a storm sometimes?

Artist—We painters in oil cannot paint a storm. I have often outlined a storm on the canvas, but as soon as I begin to spread on the oil colors the waves subside, and the sea becomes as calm as a duck pond.

"Yes, I have read about the effect oil has in calming the waves, but I had no idea it was so effective as all that."—Stray Stories.

The Fat Woman's Failure.

At a local amusement resort the lecturer is accustomed to wax eloquent over the graces of a certain fat lady, who gives many exhibitions a day on a stationary bicycle. The other night there was a tear in the speaker's eye and a quiver in his voice as he told of mademoiselle's appearance before the crowned heads of Europe.

"Yes, there was the prince of Wales' friend," he sobbed, with an emotional wave of the hand. "He saw her, loved her and would have followed her to America, but for the protestations of his mother, Queen Victoria."

"Yis," supplemented the fair object of the prince's affections. "Yis, he knowed a good thing wain he seen it." There wasn't a dry eye in the house.—Boston Record.

Found at Last.

When we suffer, Time seems to lag, and days, with leaden feet, creep slowly by. But, when relief comes, the past is forgotten in the light of a happy future. When Mr. T. B. Cutler was living in Cincinnati, Ohio, he wrote: "Palmer's Lotion has cured me of Tetter, with which I had been afflicted for over twelve years, and from which I could find no permanent relief until I used this wonderful preparation." This is the testimony of another sufferer who truthfully calls Palmer's Lotion "wonderful." If your druggist hasn't it, send to Solon Palmer, 374 Pearl Street, New York, for samples of Palmer's Lotion and Lotion Soap.

Treatment By Specialists.

In medical circles it is an acknowledged fact that development and progress in the profession have been so swift and far-reaching in recent years that it has been an utter impossibility for the regular practitioner, constantly called upon to treat practically all diseases, to keep pace with the rapid advance of knowledge and skill in the many special lines of the science. Out of this condition the specialist has arisen.

An association of these specialists under the name of the Interstate Physicians League has been formed for the purpose of treating chronic diseases, such as nervous dyspepsia, and other digestive disorders, liver and kidney diseases, chronic constipation and diarrhœa, etc.

A careful and accurate diagnosis of each case treated is first made. Then the case is turned over to the proper specialist who, from then on, takes charge of the case individually and gives it his best thought and attention.

Full particulars, a descriptive booklet, etc., will be forwarded upon application.

LAW WAS UPHELD.

By the Nerve of a Georgia Sheriff.

HE SAVED HIS PRISONER.

An Angry Mob Wanted to Lynch Him.

ONE MAN WAS SHOT DEAD.

The Intended Victim Was a Negro Murderer who Had Been Sentenced to Death, but Saved Through the Efforts of His Lawyers.

Carrollton, Ga., June 8.—The nerve of Joseph Merrill, a Georgia sheriff, yesterday upheld the law of the state and saved the life of a negro from a mob. In protecting the negro, who was saved from the gallows only a few hours before through the efforts of his lawyers, one life was lost and two men were wounded. The arrival of the state militia averted threatened trouble last night, and at 9 o'clock a special train bearing the negro, whose crime was the murder of a little white boy, was speeding towards Atlanta under guard. The man killed in attacking the jail was George Bennett, of Carrollton. The wounded men are Thomas Smith, and an unknown man, presumably a farmer.

Williams, the negro who caused the trouble, was tried and found guilty of murdering Otis Word January 1, 1901, and sentenced to be hanged yesterday. He was only this morning refused a new trial by Judge Harris, but his attorneys filed a bill of exceptions and carried the case to the supreme court. A large crowd of people had come to town to witness the hanging, and when it was learned that an appeal had been taken to the supreme court delaying the execution, there was much excited talk.

At noon a mob made an assault on the jail and unsuccessfully attempted to lynch the negro.

Athletic Contests at Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 8.—The Erie county athletic contest postponed from June 1st, were held in the Stadium at the Pan-American exposition grounds yesterday. The tracks and field were in good condition and the contests were spirited and interesting. Jerry Pierce, of the Carlisle Indian school, won the five-mile run in the good time of 26:39 1-5. His brother Frank took third place. The latter also won the mile handicap from the 100-yard mark.

The contests in the other events were all local men.

Two hundred and fifty cadets from the Virginia Polytechnic association arrived yesterday.

Machinists' Convention.

Toronto, Ont., June 8.—At the meeting of the machinists' convention yesterday afternoon a resolution was passed pledging the association to form a part of a new metal trades association which will meet in St. Louis next month. Two delegates were apppointed to attend the convention. The object of the new organization is to form a combination of all allied metal trades and make a common cause in any trouble arising with the manufacturers.

Another Victory.

London, June 8.—Another of Britain's great racing trophies has been captured by America, Foxhall P. Keene having won the Oaks with Cap and Bells II., ridden by Milton Henry. The owner, horse and jockey are all thoroughbred Americans, so the victory was not diluted, as it was in the case of the Derby.

Independence Not Allowed to Compete.

New York, June 8.—Thomas W. Lawton's yacht, the Independence, will not be allowed to compete in the trial races preliminary to the races for the America's cup. This decision was arrived at by the challenge committee of the New York Yacht club and was conveyed to Mr. Lawson in a letter.

TRADE REVIEW.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Report of Business Conditions.

New York, June 8.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: The labor situation in many parts of the country is still seriously unsettled and constitutes a reason for hesitation in some industries, discouraging new operations which satisfactory conditions would otherwise stimulate. But quick decision is to be expected in some of these labor controversies and in the meantime trade is encouraged by reports of a satisfactory condition of winter wheat over a large portion of the country. As for spring wheat the crop was put in under very favorable conditions, and there have been few unsatisfactory reports.

Labor controversies have become the factor of greatest importance in the leading manufacturing industry. Counting perhaps upon the urgency of orders and heavy losses which would be sustained by employers in case of suspension, the machinists made what were considered unreasonable demands by employers at many points who have taken a determined stand and announced that the strikers' places will be filled by non-union men on Monday if they fail to resume work. More quiet conditions in the market and few new contracts make this action possible. As a rule manufacturers have not sought business beyond July 1, and it looks as though they had been preparing for the conflict.

Pig iron is extremely dull, not a sale of Bessemer being reported during the week at Pittsburg, and quotations are nominal. Large contracts for rails sustain billets and finished steel deliveries continue heavy. Shipments of farm machinery attract much attention while bridge building, new vessels and track elevation prevent dullness in structural material.

Efforts to secure advances in grain by an exaggerated reports of damage to the growing crop have given place to more rational statements and the outlook is generally conceded to be full of promise.

Shipments of boots and shoes from Boston continue very large for the last week, exceeding the same week of 1900 by 20,000 cases, and since the year opened forwardings have been over two million cases, far surpassing any previous record. Although the movement is still heavy, shops receive few orders, and it will be some weeks before active work begins on fall contracts. Retailers are offering black goods for summer wear at reduced prices, and it is evident that the production of these shoes was excessive while tan shoes have been in much greater demand and manufacturers are pushed to fill contracts. Prices are steady and jobbers report that the better qualities are sought.

AGUINALDO.

Gen. Fred Grant Says He Should Be Set to Breaking Rocks.

New York, June 8.—Gen. Fred Grant was given a reception last night by the United States Grant Post, G. A. R. In a brief address Gen. Grant said:

"Aguinaldo was not as much of a capture in the Philippines as he seems to be here. To tell the truth, he had lost about all his influence. We do not treat him as if we considered him of some importance. We cannot kill him, of course, but we want to make him feel that he stands on the same footing with any other Filipino. If he were sent to jail and set to breaking rocks it would be better for all. If over there they get the idea that we have a high respect for Aguinaldo's importance, when he gets back he will have a following which will make us trouble."

Gen. Grant said that the friars were much hated and very corrupt. The Philippine commission, he said, desired to treat the friars the same as any other persons, with no more consideration and with no less.

Carnegie Hands Over $10,000,000.

London, June 8.—Andrew Carnegie signed a deed yesterday transferring $10,000,000 in five per cent. United States Steel Corporation bonds to trustees for the benefit of the universities of Scotland. The amount becomes immediately available. The next installment of interest can be used for the October term. The trustees include the earls of Elgin and Roseberry, Lord Balfour and trustees of Scottish universities.

The Army Canteen.

St. Paul, Minn., June 8.—By unanimous vote, although with small attendance, the American Medical association yesterday adopted a resolution endorsing the movement for the re-establishment of the army post canteen.

WITH A BANQUET.

New York Chamber of Commerce Is Honored in London.

Morris T. Jessup Replies to Address of Welcome—Great Britain and the United States to Rule the World—Stand Shoulder to Shoulder.

London, June 6.—The banquet tendered by the London chamber of commerce to the delegates of the New York chamber at Grocers hall last night was one of the handsomest affairs of the kind ever given in a city famed for lavish hospitality. No effort was spared to honor the American guests.

Following is a synopsis of the reply of Morris K. Jessup to the address of welcome:

"Mr. Chairman, my lords and gentlemen: It is said that kind words are the music of the world. For the gracious and kindly words with which you have made us welcome, and for the generous warmth of our reception manifested in every eye and felt in the clasp of every hand, it is my privilege to express the thanks of the New York chamber of commerce.

"It was a happy inspiration that dictated your kind invitation and, I assure you, that it was accepted in the same spirit, and if our coming together at this time serves to bind in closer ties the relations between the two nations our hopes and expectations will be fulfilled and we shall count it a high privilege to have been here."

Mr. Jessup then reviewed the founding of the New York chamber of commerce and said:

"We do not forget how you instilled into our minds habits of industry, thrift and fair dealing, so that now, in the dawn of the Twentieth century, we are able to state with some pride that the business relations between the two countries amount to the sum of 960,000,000 yearly. We do not forget how in the past 130 years aided us to produce this result, by the inculcation, through your example of these principles of justice, religion and law, which we have imbibed from you as the foundation of all commercial transactions, and secondly, by the free loaning of capital to enable us to make use of our great resources, develop our mines, build our railroads and extend our commerce. We do not forget the kindness shown us in times of financial distress, especially in 1873, when business was at a standstill when one of our honored citizens and princely merchants (afterwards a president of our chamber), Mr. James Gore King, visited London, and, by his high character so impressed our financial men that the bank of England advanced one million pounds sterling, in sovereigns, and sent the same by packet to New York, under the control of Mr. King, to enable the banks in New York to resume specie payments and thus restore confidence, asking for no security save the honor of Mr. King and his and Baring Brothers' guarantee, no stipulation being made as to the time the loan was to be returned, nor any proof expected or requested, the only reward being the desire to do a kindly and friendly act. We do not, we never can forget, that when, during our late struggle, we were not only threatened with a divided country, but were overshadowed by the menace of the war with you, your illustrious, good, wise and beloved queen (God bless her memory) was our best friend.

"We are of the same race, the same blood, the same language, and tradition; we have the same religion, civilization and laws, and we read the same Bible; no, sir, we can only be rivals in the effort each may put forth, actuated by the same desire to carry to the ends of the earth the blessings of our civil and religious liberty. To this end we will work hand in hand, shoulder to shoulder, heart beating with heart."

All of the speeches teemed with extreme friendliness and faith in the establishment of permanent friendly relations. All the speakers expressed the belief that Great Britain and the United States would rule the destinies of the world, and that their unwritten alliance would always work for peace and the benefit of mankind.

Lord Brassey presided. On his right was Mr. Choate and on his left Lord Lansdowne. Morris K. Jessup, Andrew Carnegie, Cornelius N. Bliss, Lord Alverstone (lord chief justice of England), Mr. Griscom, George C. Ward, Lords Strathcoma and Mountroyal, Levi P. Morton, Lord Avebury (president of the associated chamber of commerce) and J. Pierpont Morgan were among those seated at the table of honor. In all nearly three hundred were present.

Presidential Appointments in Navy.

Washington, June 6.—The president yesterday made the following appointments in the navy: Commander, Lewis C. Heilner; lieutenant commanders, Charles N. Atwater, Harry Kimmell, George W. McElroy; lieutenants, Walter S. Crossley, Benjamin B. McCormick; lieutenants, junior grade, Wat C. Cluverius, Jonas H. Holden, Earl J. Jessop, Thomas A. Kearney, Arthur McArthur, jr., Charles M. Tozer; chaplain, F. McGrafl; assistant surgeon, G. M. Mayers; chief sailmaker, to rank with but after ensign.

Would Make Them Object Lessons.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 6.—The National American Woman Suffrage association put in the last day of its convention here at steady work. An amendment to the by-laws making the annual conventions movable instead of at Washington every other year was defeated on the appeal of Susan B. Anthony, who wanted the conventions to be object lessons to congress.

Judge Brewer Married.

Burlington, Vt., June 6.—Judge Brewer, of the United States supreme court, and Miss Minor Mott were married yesterday afternoon

AMERICAN LOCOMOTIVES.

Englishmen Claim They Run Well but Cost too Much for Fuel and Repairs.

London, June 7.—The Midland Railway Co., since the latter half of 1899, has been using 40 American locomotives. Samuel W. Johnson, superintendent of the locomotive department of the company, will say in the Daily Mail to-day that the results of six months comparative tests made with standard Midland good engines under the same conditions showed the extra working cost of the American locomotive over the British to be from 20 to 25 per cent. in fuel, 50 per cent. in oil and 60 per cent. in repairs.

The American locomotives in question cost £400 less than the British. They were delivered in the course of a few months, while the locomotives ordered of British firms in March, 1887, were not delivered until February, 1900, largely on account of the strike.

Sir Alfred Paget, of the Midland Railroad Co., will confirm Mr. Johnson's statement in the Daily Mail, but will say:

"In the United States they make their engines on an entirely different principle and with quite an opposite idea to ours as to their future. In the United States you take an engine off a peg, as it were, and from then work it right out till it dies, giving it no rest. The American contention is that by the time it is done for something better will come along.

"We make our engines as good as we possibly can and then we tend them carefully, rest them, clean them and do everything to make them last.

"The Americans can make them as well as we can but the conditions are different. Ours are better under all circumstances. There is no market in the English railways for American engines. Abroad it is different."

BUTCHERED AND EATEN.

Members of a South Sea Expedition Are Massacred by Cannibals.

Berlin, June 7.—The Tageblatt prints a special correspondence from new Guinea containing a full account of the massacre of the members of the first German south sea expedition on the cannibal islands of St. Matthias. They were all killed and eaten, save Dr. Heinroth.

The Colonial Zeitung, the official organ of the German Colonial society, furnishes details of the massacre. It seems that the vessel which carried the expedition to the island of St. Matthias left, after a few days, for Herbertshoh, New Britain, to get coal and fresh supplies. During its absence the savages, who had hitherto appeared friendly, although known to be rabid cannibals, planned to kill and rob the diminished party.

The plot was carried out one morning while the members of the expedition, who had a body guard of 40 drilled papuans, were cleaning their rifles, which they had taken apart. Suddenly 80 of the islanders broke from the bush, raising fierce war cries and brandishing spears with which they stabbed to death the leader of the party of Menckon (heretofore cabled as Mercke or Mencke), his secretary, Herr Caro, and a white sailor who was asleep under a tent.

Dr. Heinroth emptied his revolver into his assailants, while the bodyguard, in the meantime, retired to the boats with the wounded and Dr. Heinroth, leaving 12 dead. The boats put off to an island not far distant, where the expeditionary vessel rescued them. Subsequently the survivors returned to the island of St. Matthias, where they found that the bodies had been devoured and the camp looted.

PARDONED.

President McKinley Liberates Five Men and Commutes the Sentences of Four Others.

The president yesterday acted upon 14 applications for pardons. He commuted four sentences and granted five pardons as follows: Randall Adams, convicted in the United States district court of Kentucky for conspiracy to intimidate officers which resulted in the killing of a deputy United States marsnal and sentenced to imprisonment for life. He was pardoned. He has served about ten years. Harry Johnson, sentenced to pay a fine of $800 and serve 13 months in prison, October 4, 1900, in the southern district of Ohio for embezzling post office money order funds while postmaster at Wilberforce, was pardoned. The amount taken was about $800. Harry H. Smith, in 1900, was convicted in Indiana of counterfeiting and sentenced to two years in the Ohio penitentiary. The president commutes the sentence to one year. William Moore was convicted in Pennsylvania of robbing a post office and on September 8, 1897, was sentenced to the penitentiary for five years. He was pardoned. Nicholas Polidate was convicted in 1898 in North Carolina of counterfeiting and sentenced to serve a term of six years in prison. His sentence is commuted to expire June 13, at which time he will have served two years. Richard Toulmin was convicted in the United States consular court at Shanghai, China, in 1898, of the murder of a Chinaman on board the American ship Dosing in the harbor of Wu Chow and sentenced to life imprisonment in Shanghai prison for American convicts. He is pardoned.

A Boer Reverse.

Pretoria, June 7.—Col. Wilson with 240 of Kitchener's scouts has surprised and routed 400 Boers belonging to the Beyer command, 34 miles west of Warm Baths. The Boers resisted stubbornly, but finally broke and fled, leaving 37 dead, a hundred prisoners, and all their wagons and supplies, including 8,000 cattle, in the hands of the British. The loss of the latter was three men killed and 15 wounded. Beyer's main command arrived on the scene soon after the engagement, but failed in an attempt to recapture the supplies

THE TARIFF.

It is Discussed by the Industrial Commission in New York City.

New York, June 7.—The industrial commission at its session yesterday considered the tariff question, the witnesses being Congressman Taylor, of Ohio, and Dr. George Guiton, president of the New York Institute of Social Economies. Mr. Taylor took the position that any discussion on question of tariff at this time would have a damaging effect upon the country. He said the Dingley law was the most equitable tariff law the United States had ever had. He took a decided position against trusts and said that they are not fostered by the protective tariff. Mr. Taylor also said that he believed in the principle of reciprocity but that he did not endorse any of the recently negotiated reciprocity treaties.

Dr. Gunton devoted himself especially to replying to an argument recently made before the commission by Mr. Edward Atkinson for freer trade. Mr. Gunton said that the freedom contended for by opponents of the tariff is analagous to the freedom of the savage, a freedom which if indulged in too freely not only brings injury to others but ruin to himself.

Mr. Taylor announced the general principle that the history of the country for the past four years and the present conditions demand that there should not be the slightest relaxing of the tariff principles as now embodied in the Dingley law. The relation of the tariff to trusts, he said, is only incidental. The Dingley law embodies, he said, the idea that the American civilization is on a higher plane than any other and requires a higher reward for its labor to maintain that excellence. Whenever the labor cost is greater than elsewhere, it is necessary that there should be an equalizing influence such as the Dingley law. Principally, therefore, the protective tariff law was in the interest of labor. Even the farmer, he said, gets a reciprocal benefit.

Mr. Taylor announced himself as opposed to the principle involved in the trusts because, he said, he considered human nature too weak to entrust in a few people such a power as is involved in trusts. He thought abuses were certain and that the result would be what he called governmental socialism or governmental ownership of the articles controlled by the trusts.

"Do you know of any combine that actually controls any industry?" Mr. Clark asked. Mr. Taylor said that he did not.

Mr. Taylor said that distrustful as he was of the trusts he had no remedy to suggest. He did not accept the theory that the trusts alone could be trusted to reduce the cost of commodities. He said he would oppose the Babcock bill placing iron products on the free list because the result would be to destroy independent effort.

While it would not especially injure the trusts, as with them the only effect would be to reduce labor. On general principles he thought a discussion of the tariff at this time would be unwise and undesirable. He did not consider trusts the outgrowth of protection, but conceded that incidentally some trusts had been benefited by protection.

LINCOLN'S REMAINS.

They Will be Reinterred in Such a Manner as Will Foil Body Snatchers.

Chicago, June 7.—The Inter Ocean will to-morrow print a story saying that the recent re-interment of the remains of Abraham Lincoln at Springfield, Ill., has been done in such a manner as to leave them in a measure at the mercy of body-snatchers, and that steps are to be taken at once, at the instance of Robert T. Lincoln, to have the body placed as in the former monument, under a huge block of cement, where it will be out of reach of any attempt at molestation.

Mr. Lincoln some time ago gained the idea that the remains of his father were not properly secured against possible desecration by body-snatchers and determined to make an investigation on his own account. He went to Springfield in the disguise of a workingman, and spent much time in and around the new monument. He came to the conclusion that the present location of the body left it in a measure at the mercy of anybody who should desire to carry it away, particularly as there is no watchman around the monument at night. He will take steps at once to have the matter remedied, and have the body placed so that it will hereafter be secure from any interference whatever.

Snow Fall in the West.

Jamestown, N. D., June 7.—Snow fell heavily yesterday throughout the central and northern portions of North Dakota. At Jamestown snow fell for two hours this morning. A similar state of affairs is reported in towns on the Jamestown Northern railroad. The snow quickly melted. The oldest settlers cannot recall a similar occurrence in June.

Will Investigate.

Washington, June 7.—A naval board of inquiry will be assembled at San Francisco to investigate the explosion which occurred yesterday in the naval powder magazine at the Mare Island navy yard.

The People's Church.

Chicago, June 7.—Articles of incorporation for the People's Church of America were granted yesterday at Springfield, this action being taken to extend the scope of the People's Church of Chicago into a national organization. The Chicago church, under the direction of Rev. Dr. H. W. Thomas, will be the parent body and will have limited jurisdiction over congregations at other points. The first new branches are proposed for Duluth, Minn., and for the Black Hills region in South Dakota. Branches already exist in Milwaukee.

THE MANUFACTURERS.

Commercial Reciprocity Was the Theme that Was Discussed Yesterday.

Detroit, Mich., June 6.—Commercial reciprocity was the theme which the Manufacturers National association discussed yesterday and one on which widely diverging views were expressed at times when self interest alone prevailed, but when these interests were laid aside and the good of the manufacturing industries of the United States was considered in the aggregate, then the delegates were agreed that reciprocity was the only means by which the foreign trade of the American manufacturers could be regarded. During the discussion of the president's report at the morning session, Gen. W. H. Withington, of Jackson, Mich., said he thought the business men of the country and not the politicians should have the most to say about the tariff laws. He was in favor of tariff revision although he had hitherto been in favor of a high tariff. W. L. Saunders, vice president of the Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill Co., of New York, agreed with Gen. Withington. He said a high tariff was not only unnecessary, but a hindrance and a danger to our business. "Our Russian sugar controversy," said he, "shows how we may be legislated against by other nations."

William E. Wood, manufacturer of ice tools, said if he looked at the matter from a selfish point of view, he would declare for absolute free trade but agreed with the others that a protective policy was the best.

James F. Taylor said that while American manufacturers were clamoring for the open door in China they should not shut the door of the United States.

Detroit, Mich., June 7.—At its closing session yesterday the National Association of Manufacturers adopted a resolution recommending the calling of a general convention for the consideration of reciprocity treaties with foreign countries. The executive committee was charged to call and organize such a convention. The following resolution was adopted with regard to tariff revision: "Resolved that the National Association of Manufacturers affirms the following principles should govern all legislation. The object of tariff legislation should be to furnish adequate protection to such products only as require it, without providing for monopoly abuses. The tariff on goods of which the cost of production is higher in the United States than in foreign countries should be at least what is necessary to compensate domestic industries for the higher cost of production."

The association re-elected its old officers as has been the custom since it was organized and fixed Indianapolis as the place for the next convention.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS.

They Are Making Great Plans For Their Twentieth International Convention at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, O., June 6.—The twentieth international Christian Endeavor convention, to be held in this city from July 6 to 10, gives promise of being the best convention ever held by that great organization of young people in the churches.

The program for the convention is the most elaborate ever prepared for a religious meeting. The list of speakers is larger than ever and contains the names of prominent orators, missionaries, lecturers and Christian Endeavor workers, laymen as well as ministers.

The most elaborate plans have been devised for caring for the tens of thousands of visitors. In addition to the 1,500 in the choruses, another 1,500 will be employed in the work of the reception, entertainment and ushers committees. All visitors on arrival will be cared for by the reception committee of 800 young people. Nineteen churches have been designated as headquarters for the various state delegations. To one of these each visitor will be conducted, and after registration will receive the official badge (without which none can be admitted to the meetings until after the hour of opening), the program, map of the city, etc., and then be assigned to his temporary home. The entertainment committee has prepared a large list of private residences where Christian Endeavorers will find entertainment at a nominal price, and ample provision has been made for the expected great number.

TO ERECT NEW BUILDINGS.

Mr. Armor Will Make Another Large Donation to Armour Institute.

Chicago, June 6.—In furtherance of her plans to make the institution founded by her husband the best school of engineering in the United States, Mrs. P. D. Armour to-day decided to add $250,000 to the recent donation of $1,000,000 made by her son, J. Ogden Armour, to the Armour institute. With the latest gifts two new buildings are to be erected. One will be the Armour Memorial School of Engineering, the other will be occupied as a workshop, and according to plans, will be the model shop of the country. Two hundred thousand dollars will be expended in the erection of Memorial hall, the other $50,000 being spent for the building and equipment of the workshop. Yesterday's donation makes the total amount given by the Armour family to the institute that bears their name $3,900,000.

Documentary Stamps.

Washington, June 6.—Commissioner of Internal Revenue Yerkes has informed collectors that in order to avoid unnecessary correspondence regarding the recent decision of the supreme court declaring the requirement that documentary stamps be affixed to export bills of lading to be unconstitutional, a request has been made to the supreme court for a rehearing of the case of Fairbanks vs. the United States involving the same questions which has been granted. The granting of this leave for a rehearing prevents the mandate being executed.

Republican State Convention.

To the Republican electors of Pennsylvania:—

I am directed by the Republican State Oommittee to announce that the Republicans of Pennsylvania, by their duly chosen representatives, will meet in Convention at the Opera House, in the city of Harrisburg, on Wednesday, August 21st, 1901, at 10:30 o'clock a. m. for the purpose of nominating candidates for the following offices, to-wit:

One person for the office of Justice of the Supreme Court.

One person for the office of State Treasurer.

In accordance with the rules governing the organization, the representation in the State Convention will be based on the vote polled at the last Presidential election. Under the rules each legislative district is entitled to one delegate for every two thousand votes cast for the Presidential Electors in 1900, and an additional delegate for every fraction of two thousand votes polled in excess of one thousand.

By order of the Republican State Committee.

Dyspeptics cannot be long lived because to live requires nourishment Food is not nourishing until it is digested. A disordered stomach cannot digest food, it must have assistance. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests all kinds of food without aid from the stomach, allowing it to rest and regain its natural functions. Its elements are exactly the same as the natural digestive fluids and it simply can't help but do you good. R. C. Dodson.

The next time a woman gets cross at you remember that she has to wear a corset and be patient.

Call at L. Taggart's drug store and get a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They are an elegant physic. They also improve the appetite, strengthen the digestion and regulate the liver and bowels. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect.

A man thinks he knows but a woman knows better.

You may as well expect to run a steam engine without water as to find an active, energetic man with a torpid liver and you may know that his liver is torpid when he does not relish his food or feels dull and languid after eating, often has headache and sometimes dizziness. A few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will restore his liver to its normal functions, renew his vitality, improve his digestion and make him feel like a new man. Price, 25 cents. Samples free at L. Taggart's drug store.

A Good Thing.

German Syrup is the special prescription of Dr. A. Boschcee, a celebrated German Physician, and is acknowledged to be one of the most fortunate discoveries in Medicine. It quickly cures Coughs, Colds and all Lung troubles of the severest nature, removing, as it does, the cause of the affection and leaving the parts in a strong and healthy condition. It is not an experimental medicine, but has stood the test of years, giving satisfaction in every case, which its rapidly increasing sale every season confirms. Two million bottles sold annually. Boschee's German Syrup was introduced in the United States in 1868, and is now sold in every town and village in the civilized world. Three doses will relieve any ordinary cough. Price 75 cts. Sold by L. Taggart. Get Green's Prize Almanac.

Medicine cures the man who is not fated to die.

How to Avoid Trouble.

Now is the time to provide yourself and family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, most certain to be needed before the summer is over, and if procured now may save you a trip to town in the night or in your busiest season. It is everywhere admitted to be the most succesful medicine in use for bowel complaints, both for children and adults. No family can afford to be without it. For sale by L. Taggart.

According to the official report the expenses of the funeral of Queen Victoria reached a total of £35,000.

Read It in His Newspaper.

George Schaub, a well known, German citizen of New Lebanon, Ohio, is a constant reader of the Dayton Volkszeitung. He knows that this paper aims to advertise only the best in its colums, and when he saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised therein for lame back, he did not hesitate in buying a bottle of it for his wife, who for eight weeks had suffered with the most terrible pains in her back and could get no relief. He says: "After using the Pain Balm for a few days my wife said to me, 'I feel as though born anew,' and before using the entire contents of the bottle the unbearable pains had entirely vanished and she could again take up her household duties." He is very thankful and hopes that all suffering likewise will hear of her wonderful recovery. This valuable liniment is for sale by L. Taggart.

Diller-Miller.

A pretty wedding will take place at 7 o'clock this evening at Grace Church Chapel, 41st st. and Girard ave., when Miss Caroline Gets Miller, only daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. H. Q. Miller, will be married to Mr. Walter Luding Diller. The church will be decorated with daisies and palms.

Mr. George De Silver, uncle of the bride, will escort her to the chancel steps, where she will be met by Mr. Diller and his best man, Mr. Herbert Stitzer. The Rev. Mr. Miller, the bride's father, will then perform the first part of the ceremony, and her grandfather, the Rev. Henry S. Gets, farmerly of the Church of the Apostles, will preside at the latter part.—Philadelphia Bulletin, June 5th.

Letter to Percey Fry.

Emporium, Pa.

Dear Sir: You know how well it pays to keep your carriages painted, both for looks and to keep out water. It pays as well to paint your barn and your house. We put your barn first, because that is your business—your customers see it.

You see, there are two good reasons for paint; one is looks; the other is wear. If you paint for looks, the wear will take care of itself.

Paint often for looks; and use good paint for both looks and wear.

The best paint is Devoe lead and zinc ground together by machinery; same proportions as are used by the U. S. Government. It wears twice as long as lead and oil mixed by hand.

Yours truly,
38 F. W. DEVOE & Co.

Children's Day Notices.

Children's Day will be observed next Sabbath at the Prebyterian church. In the morning there will be a sermon to children and the ordinance of baptism. All the children are asked to come out to this morning service promptly. In the evening a beautiful exercise will be gone through with by the children of the Junior Endeavor society.

"Children's Day" will be observed in the M. E. church at Sizerville next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. A special programme is being prepared for the occasion. Everybody is invited to attend.

KING SOLOMON AND THE QUEEN OF SHEBA.

In Connection with John Robinson's 10 Big Shows Combined.

This wonderful spectacle has a breadth of effect which surprises and delights. Its gorgeous processions and splendid ballets are incomporable, and nothing so vast or imposing has ever been seen in this country before. We gaze upon the ancient city of Jerusalem and the Temple of Solomon animated with life and glowing with color. It is no mere artificial show, but a vivid and vast realization of life in the time of Solomon. The scenes are beguiled by its reality as well as its surpassing beauty and the perfection of its details at Emporium, Friday, June 21.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

BROWN.

JAMES W. BROWN, aged 72 years, nine months and ten days, died quite suddenly last Monday evening, at five o'clock, at the residence of his brother-in-law, Hon. S. S. Smith, in Emporium, of neuralgia of the heart. Deceased came to Emporium on Saturday last, accompanied by his wife to visit his sister, Mrs. Smith. He seemed to be in perfect health until 10:30 Monday morning when he was taken with neuralgia and continued to grow worse until five o'clock, when death relieved his suffering. The remains were taken to Weedville, Pa., the home, for interment this morning. Services will be held in the Presbyterian Church at Mt. Zion at 1:30 to-day.

Mr. Brown was well and very favorably known to our older citizens, having for ten years been a resident of Driftwood, leaving there about fifteen years ago, after which time he has mostly resided on his farm, and engaged in lumbering, near Weedville, Pa. Realizing that old age had fastened its fangs unto him he decided to take some rest and comfort, visit his sisters, children and grand-children, and accordingly wound up his business affairs, stored his household goods and, with his wife, was en route for the Pan-America, thence to visit his daughter, Mrs. Gillon (well known here) at Towanda, Pa., from which place they were going to the far west to remain with their sons and daughter for a year at least. He was full of hope for a pleasant summer when death interposed, crushing the fond anticipations of wife, sisters and children. Such is life—and death.

Hon. S. S. Smith and wife, promptly notified the absent ones and yesterday his sons James and Harry, of Bradner, O., and daughter, Mrs. Mary Keister accompanied by her husband and children, arrived from same place. Mrs. J. M. Gillon, the youngest daughter, arrived yesterday morning.

How rapidly the old landmarks are passing away.

McLAUGHLIN.

MARGARET JANE SMITH was born at Douglas Town in the Province of New Brunswick on the 23rd day of Feb. 1856.

She was married to Mr. Charles McLaughlin, of Beechwood, Pa., on the 3rd day of March, 1885, at Emporium, Cameron Co., Pa.

She departed this life on the 9th day of June, 1901, having lived 45 years three months 19 days. Two brothers and three sisters still survive her whose names are as follows: Rev. Alex. Smith, Penfield, Pa; Mrs. Harry Eagle, Chatham, Canada; Miss Grace Smith, St. Johns, Canada; Mr. John W. Smith, Beechwood, Pa; Mrs. David Kirkpatrick, Beechwood, Pa. Mrs. McLaughlin was an estimable woman, kind, courageous and true. Her life is an example in word and deed. Not only in the home, but through the entire community her death leaves a vacancy. Peace to her memory, for it is precious.

She loved us, but she's gone.
We miss her, but then
Why spend our tears to mourn?
She came to a happy end.

Yet, we are mortal,
And sorrow is hard to bear.
Yes, but our sorrow is not "no hope"
For we shall meet her there.

A WOMAN'S SONG.

Do you call my face a rose,
With the time of roses near?
Find a truer name than this
For the brow and lips you kiss.
For you know that roses die
In the autumn of the year.
And besides you, love, must I
Front the frost and face the snows.

I was never rose or star,
One's too near and one's too far.
I'm no pebble and no pearl,
But a living, loving girl,
Mouth to kiss you, hand to keep
Touch with you while you're asleep.
Eyes to kindle when you're glad,
Hope to climb where you would creep
Tongue to comfort when you're sad.

Call me wife and comrade, dear,
Call me neither star nor rose—
Then the day I need not dread
When the snow falls on my head.
Then my soul to yours shall be
Changeless, though my beauty goes,
And the eyes I love not see
Youth and grace forsaking me
As the bees forsake a rose
When the wind of autumn blows,
Soul on soul looks in and knows
All that's best of You and Me.

CHAPTER IX.—CONTINUED.

Mammy came close to his arm, uttering a warning, wordless sound, and looking fearfully about her.

"De kerridge come for me in er rush des fo' day an' we took up de doctor at es office on de way hyah. When we go in dere, Miss Frances settin' in de big chair shiverin'. He done tell me her mind b'en 'sturbed by 'er pa's dyin', an' not ter notice nothin' she say. Fus' t'ing we know I done foun' blood on 'er han's an' wrapper an' hit sho'ly skeer'd me. But he won't talk an' she won't talk—'ceptin' ter tell him somebody gointer shoot 'im fum de winder. He git out pretty quick 'bout dat time an' bimeby she go ter sleep. But she ain' been 'erse'f since; an' she des won't talk 'bout dat night! She—"

"Is that all?"

"Fo' God!"

"Do you have any idea who the man that was shot is?"

"No, sah. Ain' hyah 'em mention es name nair time."

"What young men does she know? Who visits her?"

"Nobody. She ain' been out dat yard gate sence she came home 'cep'n to run 'round ter see de doctor or go to church or shop er little."

"Does the gate stay locked?"

"Mos' all de time locked. An' we alls keep de keys—Miss Frances an' me."

"Mammy, you have been blind if you are telling the truth, and I think you are telling what you know. Now listen: if you wish to remain with me after I am married do just as I tell you. Go and find your daughter's husband—what is his name?"

"Joe, sah."

"Make Joe tell you all about this affair. Get back at once and come to my room. Don't speak of this matter to anyone—don't say the man is dead. And quietly prepare to leave the city with your Miss Frances. If it becomes necessary to leave, we shall have no time to lose. Go; I rely upon you."

"Joe done gone, sah!" she said; "doctor done sont him up de kentry."

CHAPTER X.

Holbin received the negro woman's report in desperation. Upon the second night after, casting aside all scruples, he went to his mother's room. She had not retired, but was busy with her correspondence, which she put aside as her son entered the door. Without seeking to read them he saw "Washington, D. C.," upon several sealed letters, a fact that he recalled later. The smile of pleasure which lit up her severe countenance disappeared when she noted the look of anger and distress on his face.

"Well," she said, "are you still dissatisfied?" It was their first meeting alone since the death of John Brookin.

"Do not congratulate yourself too soon, mother. The game is but half played out, and we may find that strong cards are held against us."

"What do you mean by that?"

He walked the room, pausing at times before her as she sat in her armchair. Her black eyes followed him. Her white face was frozen into an impenetrable mask. He described the occurrences of the last few days, and made a clean breast of it all, reserving only certain facts in connection with his experience with Louise, among which was the existence of a child. These reservations he mentally classed as irrelevant.

It is not likely that Raymond's confessions greatly surprised his mother. She was, in fact, already familiar with most of his history. The disturbing elements of his statement were the dangerous character of Louise and the astounding circumstances of the shooting. Yet these drew from Mrs. Brookin no comment, no evidence of excitement or dismay. She regarded her son silently and sternly for a few moments, then dropped into a chair. A flush at length overspread her white face. Raymond knew that it was the advance wave of a tide of anger and hesitated when she ordered him to ring the bell. She arose calmly, and crossing the room pulled the bell cord as deliberately as though to summon her carriage. A few minutes after, during which time she stood rigidly looking down on her son, William, the butler, appeared.

"Go to Dr. Brodnar immediately," she said, "and tell him to come to me; that Miss Frances is desperately ill."

"Mother!"

She waved the servant away and turned upon her son with unrestrained anger. "Do you think that I fear him? Do you think that I shall sit quietly by and let him introduce people into this house—into my stepdaughter's room—in the night and entangle us in his plots? Oh, that I were a man!" She was now a caged tigress, and giving freedom to long-suppressed fury. "It would be nothing less than the cowhide!"

"You forget Frances."

"I forget nothing! I realize, on the contrary, sir, that both Frances and her doctor are at my mercy now. He dare not betray her! And this comes of your shameful dallying with that woman—you!—my son!—the puppet, the plaything, the slave of a—"

"Wait, mother! You forget yourself, at least—and me. I am not a child. A little more, and I shall leave this house not to enter it again. Be careful what you say—and be careful of Frances. Prove her guilty of any crime and you defeat your own plans."

No amount of pleading, no love or affection on the part of her boy, could have swayed the tempestuous woman as quickly as open defiance. In such moments he resembled the one human being whose fiery temper and relentless brutality had ever awed her. Raymond played his part well: "You shall not denounce me for one infamy only to link me to another."

"If you had shown such spirit with Brodnar," she said, bitterly.

"If I had! Words—blows—a duel! Then the truth would have come out. To accept the responsibilities of the will afterwards would be contemptible. No, mother, you women see but one side of such a matter. What would become of us should Louise make herself known? Start the police upon this matter, and they will ferret her out."

"Why have you not taken her away? You have been imprudent in delaying that."

"Nervous prostration. I have a nurse with her. To-morrow, if she may travel, I shall get her out of the city. For God's sake give me time to do that. You have no idea what you are risking."

"Doctor out, ma'am," said William, returning at this moment. "Young doctor say he will sen' 'im roun' des soon as he come back—dere now! front do' bell ringin' dis minute like somebody tryin' to pull it tru' de do'. Dat's de doctor, ev'ytime."

"Stand behind the portiere in my dressing-room," said the mother to her son, who was preparing to depart, "and under no circumstances let yourself be seen!" Almost immediately Dr. Brodnar entered the room.

"You sent for me, madam," he began. "Where is Frances?"

"Asleep, I suppose. I have been guilty of a fiction, but my intentions are good. Dr. Brodnar, who was the man you took from my house wounded, and for what purpose was he here? I demand an instant answer!"

"I decline to make any statement, madam, touching my professional business or to discuss this matter with you. Good evening."

"Hold, sir, or I shall place the affair in the hands of the police."

"Hardly, I think. But proceed in that way if you prefer. Good evening."

"You think that I am afraid of publicity; wait and see! I shall denounce you, sir, over my own signature. I shall make your name a football for scandal mongers in every town in this state."

"NO," SAID THE WRETCHED GIRL, "YOUR SECRET IS SAFE WITH ME."

"And how about your son's, madam? You desire above all things that Raymond Holbin shall marry your stepdaughter and inherit under the will of the man you coddled and bullied out of his senses. The name of the man who was shot I shall not tell you, but I will tell you the name of the woman who shot him—I thought you were the woman. I was mistaken, and for this error I owe you an apology."

"This is infamous!"

"I was mistaken, I say, honestly. For I thought that the woman who would retreat from her dying husband, appealing to her with his heart in his eyes, who would link an orphan girl to a libertine, might easily pull a trigger to remove a lesser obstacle." The woman rushed up to him with hands clenched.

"Scoundrel! If I had the weapon now I would prove your judgment! Out of my house!" Dr. Brodnar smiled wickedly.

"I was mistaken," he continued, coolly; "the woman who shot this unknown gentleman lies, half delirious, in room 28 at the Spotswood, and her name is Louise. And, madam, I will do her full justice; she erred in her information and her aim. For the man she hoped to destroy was this libertine, cashiered, swindling, cheating son of yours. Denounce me, but breathe a word against the fame of Frances Brookin, and I shall go before Richmond with my cause. Good evening."

He bowed mockingly, and was turning away when the portiere was flung violently aside and Holbin rushed on him from behind. A keen knife in his hand flashed in the gas light and fell, but once only. Maddened with the pain and enraged at the cowardly attack, Brodnar lifted his assailant from the floor and hurled him across the room. He fell in a heap against the wall, the knife rolling to the feet of the frantic woman. To snatch it up and throw herself upon the athlete was an instant's action; but she was impotent to harm him then. He seized her wrists and turned the right one slowly but remorselessly. Her pale lips uttered no sound, but the long white fingers relaxed at length under the terrific ordeal and the knife fell to the floor. Kicking it across the room, he pushed the woman away, and stepping outside the dor, closed it behind him. He heard the furious ringing of the butler's bell, and soon beheld William running clumsily through the hall. He had opened the front door, but the servant having passed, he changed his mind, and having slammed the door made his way down and back to the wing occupied by Frances. She had retired, but arose at once.

"Bring your key and let me out at the gate," he said, "and quickly." She threw on her wrapper and wonderingly obeyed. "I have found the other woman in the case," he continued, hurriedly as they traversed the garden. "It is all very sad, my child, and too late now to be remedied." He could not see the girl's face nor understand that there was room for any misconstruction of his statement; that her mind was occupied with Richard Somers, as his had been with Holbin. Frances felt as though the blood was freezing in her veins.

"What woman?"

"The woman who did the shooting!"

"Why—why—what was her motive?"

"Jealousy!" he replied, briefly. "What I want to say to you is this: something has happened to-night that will prevent my returning here. You must come to see me occasionally, and always when needing advice or help. In the meantime keep up your courage. Nobody can disturb the big fact in our case. We have the law on our side. I shall explain it all some time. And our wounded friend—you don't ask of him—is better and impatient. He will leave Richmond to-night. Good-by."

"Oh, wait!" cried the girl in anguish. "The woman—where is she?"

"At the Spotswood and ill." He felt the blood running from a stab in his shoulder down his arm, and, fearful of the effect should the excited girl discover that he was wounded, he hurried away to his assistant. Frances waited at the gate, her face in her hands, her heart aching. With a sudden and despairing resolution she went back to her room.

"Quick, mammy, help me to dress; I must go to the hotel!"

"Lord 'a' mussy, chile, what de matter?"

"Help me, mammy—quick! Don't ask any questions."

Frances started away, wringing her hands and sobbing, but in the crowded streets, where men were cheering and cannon firing over the announcement that Virginia had seceded, and thousands of torch-lights blazed the way, she grew firmer. The general excitement was in her favor and no one attached importance to her visit. She reached and entered the sick woman's room, and, motioning away the hired nudse, dropped upon her knees by the bedside. Louise, calmer under the opiates administered by the doctor, regarded her as she might have one descended from the clouds. Something like a spasm of fear passed over her, for in the lovely face beside her she seemed to see the image of her own youth repeated.

"Who are you?" she asked, wildly.

"Your friend. Don't excite yourself."

"Your name? your name?"

"Frances Brookin! And, oh, I am so sorry for you, so very sorry!" Louise seemed to have heard only the name, which she repeated softly, wonderingly.

"Frances Brookin! And your father—who was he?"

"John Brookin."

"Ah, my God!" And the face upon the pillow was turned away in shame and confusion. After awhile she looked back, a strange light in her eyes.

"What do you want of me?" she asked, suspiciously.

"I wanted to tell you," said Frances, covering her face and sobbing anew, "that I didn't know—of you! That if I had no power on earth could have won my consent. Oh, I have been deceived—cruelly, cruelly."

Louise, who was ignorant that Frances was the girl in the room at the time of the shooting, now saw her opportunity. She raised herself eagerly.

"You are my rival, then. You came only in pity."

"Yes. And to ask your forgiveness. You have nothing to fear from me." A glad light filled the eyes of Louise. She could with difficulty restrain herself and control her voice.

"I believe you," she said. "You will not take him from me—from his child!"

"His child!" Frances was shocked and dismayed. "His child! Is there a child—of his?"

"Yes," said Louise, "but if you reveal that I shall never be allowed to see her again. You will not tell, will you?"

"No," said the wretched girl. "Your secret is safe with me. And, oh, I believed in him—I trusted him so!" She wrung her hands and turned away her face.

"It is fortunate you found him out in time," said Louise; "with me, it was too late—too late! But please do not stay here. How did you find me out?"

"The doctor. He told me about you. He has told me everything, and I wanted to see you."

"Don't cry, my dear child. What seems a great sorrow to you now is really a blessing. You have made a miserable woman happy by your coming. Go now! He may enter at any moment, and it would be painful. Go, and don't tell anyone of this visit. Will you promise?"

"I shall keep your secret," said Frances. "It is safe with me. Forgive me—if I have made you unhappy."

"I am sorry for you," said Louise, simply. Frances lifted her head proudly.

"You need not be. I am shocked and mortified; that is all. To-morrow I shall cease to remember him." She was going when Louise called her back.

"Let me see your face again, my child. Ah, how beautiful you are! Good-by, I trust you. Don't grieve about him. He cannot ever be trusted. You were to be the victim of a plot, and your friends are deceiving you. Why, the man is poor; ruined, unless he gets your fortune. He came from Europe to marry you—ah, God, he deserted me, he betrayed his child—for your money. Trust none of them, for they are desperate. They take advantage of your youth—they would persuade you into a hurried marriage—"

"But I could not, I could not be bound legally by such a travesty—such a fraud!"

"Your fortune would, and that is what he wants—that, and not you. Secure in that, he would be willing to let you go forever. Oh, but I know him. Give him the shadow of a title to your fortune and you are lost!"

"But to think that Dr. Brodnar could have deceived me so—my mother's friend! I cannot, I cannot believe it!"

"My child, trust no one. Possibly the doctor himself was deceived; it has been long since he knew him; and the man is a finished actor. Trust no man. The man who will not deceive a woman for his own advantage does not live. I know the world. If I do not, who does?" Frances took the hand of the sick woman in both of her own and held it in sympathy and grief.

"I must leave you," she said, brokenly. "Will you not tell me your name? I shall always remember you in my prayers." Louise half raised herself in the bed.

"My name! Then he did not tell you all. No, my child, do not seek to find out my name. Pray for me, if you will—and remember me as a woman more sinned against than sinning. Good night and good-by."

MORDANT JESTINGS.

Characteristic Witticisms of Certain Celebrities in the Old Times in France.

Montesquieu boldly defined a lord as "a man who sees the king, speaks to the minister, has ancestors, debts and pensions."

Prudhomme chose in 1798 as his motto for his new "Journal des Revolutions de Paris:" "The great only seem great because we are on our knees; let us get up."

When the Bien Aime himself complacently said of the farmers general—those wicked tax gatherers, the grasping publicans of old France—that they sustained the state, Duc d'Ayen had the courage to answer: "Yes, sire, as the rope sustains the criminal." The anecdote is, after all, but a preface to the familiar one of Voltaire, who, at the party when everyone was telling robber stories, had nothing to say but "Once, gentlemen, there was a farmer general," to receive the honors of the evening, says Cornhill Magazine.

The times were, indeed, fast ripening or rotting to revolution. A woman's beauty and unscrupulousness could still fill government offices with her friends, and her cleverness be trusted to keep their influence hers and turn the point of any honest re buff. Chancellor Maupeou was talking one day to Mme. Lapelletier de Beaupre, who had persuaded all her many relatives in state berths to oppose the chancellor's changes: "It is a great pity, madam, women mix themselves in affairs they understand no more than geese." "And don't you know," she answered, "it was the geese that saved the capitol?" The wit would have put her right in the estimation of that strange world, if she had been a thousand times more in the wrong. So long as one was amusing!

The Emperor's Portrait.

When Mr. Charles Denby was minister to China a publisher wrote to him asking him to procure a photograph of the emperor of China. His reply, printed in a New York exchange, shows that the pictures published as likenesses of the emperor cannot be trusted. Mr. Denby wrote as follows:

"It would afford me great pleasure to send you a photograph of the emperor if one could be procured. After making inquiries I find that his photograph, or portrait of any kind, has never been taken.

"The Son of Heaven is not visible to any foreign eye except when foreign ministers are received in audience. On such occasions all cameras or sketchbooks are absolutely forbidden.

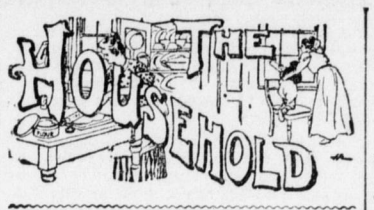
"When the emperor goes out in his sedan-chair all the cross streets are barricaded with mats, and every door and window by which he passes is closed. Should anyone be caught spying, death follows immediately."

That Lovely Gorge.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawson held an "at home" at their house in Manchester on the occasion of their return from a winter tour on the continent. They were very proud of the trip, and Mrs. Dawson was continually asking her husband if he remembered this, that, or the other glorious bit of scenery.

"And, oh, the gorge at Andermatt!" she exclaimed. "You haven't forgotten that lovely gorge, have you, Fred?"

"The gorge at the Grand hotel?" drawled Fred, wearily. "By no means! I'll remember that gorge to my dying day Why, bless me, it was the only square meal we got in Switzerland!"—London Answers.



WHAT POLITENESS DID.

A Little Comedy of Errors in Which an Ill-Mannered Yellow Pup Played the Star Part.

Frequent meetings at the church guild, at the afternoon card club and a few calls constituted the acquaintanceship of Mrs. Becker and Mrs. Cassell. Nevertheless they were good enough chums.

They knew each other's troubles with servants, their favorite tailors, and, as both were dog lovers, had heard of each other's wonderful canine pets. As Mrs. Cassell swished up the front steps leading to Mrs. Becker's house the other afternoon a miserable, ugly, little yellow dog skipped up beside her and when the door was opened shot inside ahead of her. The animal was an irretrievably commonplace cur, and Mrs. Cassell was appalled.

"The very idea!" she said to herself, "of her boasting so over her dog. My terrier wouldn't condescend to look at him!"

She endeavored to conceal her horror of the little animal frisking around the reception room and to veil her pity when her hostess arrived. To Mrs. Cassell's amazement Mrs. Becker endured with equanimity the dog's careening across her satin upholstered chairs with frightfully wet and muddy feet, and beyond one quick look said never a word when he danced on a white sofa cushion embroidered in apple blossoms, but continued her conversation amiably.

Mrs Becker's housewifely soul was shocked. "Foolish as I may be over my Fido," she said to her inner consciousness, "I would not be so ridiculous as to smile while he ruined the furniture."

When the little dog, with his homely face, pranced across to Mrs. Becker and impudently planted those same feet in the lap of her delicate-hued house gown she did not repulse him, but with what Mrs. Cassell mentally decided was an idiotic smile, even patted his head and called him fond names. It was too much and Mrs. Cassell's opinion of her good friend dropped to zero with a thud. As she carried on a light conversation with her strangely benighted hostess she was assuring herself that charming manners, a love for good deeds and a pretty face did not make up for servile devotion to such a ragged rat of a dog as the one which at the moment was placidly chewing up the expensive lace curtains and tearing them with his paws. As the animal, unreproved, swallowed a whole renaissance lace flower he had abstracted from the body of the curtain her feelings overcame her, politeness or not.

THE CUR THAT FOLLOWED HER.

"Mrs. Becker," she said, "don't you think you ought to see to your dog? Look what he is doing."

Her hostess' face flushed, for dog lovers are touchy. "My dog?" she retorted, with the accent on the pronoun. "My dog, I'd have you know, behaves himself. I think if you'll restrain your own pet over there it might be as well."

Mrs. Cassell stared at the yellow cur. "My dog?" she repeated, dazedly. "That thing my dog?" And the indignation in her voice would have freighted a ship.

The two women were on their feet in bewilderment.

"He came in with you," persisted Mrs. Becker, "and of course I thought he was your dog you've talked about so much, and naturally I couldn't say a word while you sat there and let him spoil all my furniture and my clothes."

"I thought he was yours," broke in Mrs. Cassell, vehemently, "and have been perfectly horrified at the way you've let him go on the last 15 minutes."

As light broke in there was a concerted rush and a mischievous little yellow pup was ejected from the house with a haste which made up for former tolerance.

And then caller and hostess had a real sociable time over the gasoline bottle and two cleaning cloths instead of the conventional teapot.—Chicago Daily News.

Print Covers for Furniture.

Covers should always be provided for furniture, to be used when sweeping. Heavy print will last for years, or a fine, close cheesecloth makes good dusting sheets. If different colors are used for the different heavy pieces of furniture and the covers are made in varying size to fit the pictures and furniture much time will be saved. Calico bags for the ends of the curtains will also keep them from becoming soiled during the sweeping.

WOMEN IN POLITICS.

Mary A. Livermore, Lecturer and Author, Says Their Influence Is Great and Intelligent.

Women are organized to-day as never before in the history of the world. Their clubs, leagues, councils, circles, unions, chapters and associations for all kinds of purposes are in evidence by the thousands, and their memberships run up into the million. In these organizations lectures are delivered on all conceivable topics, and not alone on "art, literature and

(Author, Lecturer and Advocate of Woman's Rights.)

Browning," as the maligners of clubs would have us believe. Every social and public question under heaven is openly discussed in these societies by women appointed beforehand, and who have prepared themselves for the occasion, and reports of the debates are published in their official organs.

Inevitably, this enlarges the education of women and assists them in the formation of opinions concerning the mooted questions of the day in which men are interested. The average woman is as well educated as the average man, perhaps better, and is quite as well informed, and men know it. It is no uncommon thing to hear a man say nowadays: "My wife feels deeply about this Filipino war," or "this canteen question. I have not had time to read and think about it, as she has, but I'm inclined to believe she's right."

The "political influence" of women is felt strongly in towns and cities of Massachusetts when a local election is pending. Few of the 120 towns of the state that voted a no-license law last year could have done it without the help of women. They held no-license rallies, arranged for effective speaking and music, distributed literature, invoked the aid of the ministers and churches, canvassed for votes, and supplemented the men with whom they worked in every way possible. Thirty-three of the states of the union have local option laws in some form on their statute books, which means that on this one vital question alone women exert an enormous "political influence." Women have been the saddest sufferers from the liquor traffic from time immemorial, and they may be trusted to hit it hard when they have a chance.

Women took a deep interest in the election of Hon. Mr. Bates during the last gubernatorial campaign. They had no especial grievance against his competitor, but a mighty preference for Mr. Bates. The entire makeup of the man, his past record and the promise of the future given by his life and character constituted him the candidate who should be elected, in the estimation of not a few women of influence and activity. "Persuade the men of your household and acquaintance to vote for Bates" became their watchword. I must not tell tales out of school, but the methods that were quietly and persistently followed must have had their influence with voters.

"Has woman any influence in politics?" Ask Brigham Roberts, the Mormon polygamist, who would now be a member of the lower house of congress but for the women of the country, who threw their influence against him solidly, until he was sent back to Utah, and, like the lamented Hon. J. J. Ingalls, became "a statesman out of a job."

Does somebody rise to inquire: "Why women do not exert their political influence in behalf of school suffrage, which has been granted them in this state?" They do not have school suffrage, only school committee suffrage, which is another thing. They are not consulted in the nomination of the ticket for school committee, cannot attend the caucuses, and are only allowed to vote for a list of men of whom they know nothing, who are put in nomination by politicians of whom they know nothing. Before they can use this fragment of a right they are required to observe all the usages and forms which give men the full ballot. How many men could be dragooned to the polls under similar circumstances?—Mary A. Livermore, in Chicago Tribune.

When the Children Snore.

Snoring is a symptom that should not be neglected in children. It shows that there is some obstruction to the free passage of air from the nose to the throat. The tonsils may be enlarged, and partially close the passage at its lower opening. There may be polypus or some small tumor in the nasal passage itself, or catarrh of the throat or nose, or both. A physician should be consulted. — Ladies' Home Journal.

Ice in the Sick Room.

One way to keep ice in the sick room is to fasten a piece of flannel in a deep tin pan or pail so that it will sag in the middle, but will not touch the bottom of the pail. In this flannel a piece of ice can be put and so wrapped in its enveloping folds that no air can reach it. When small pieces need to be broken off a pin, preferably a hat pin, can be used.

THE FARMING WORLD

THE ASPARAGUS BEETLE.

To Exterminate This Pest for Next Year Active Operations Must Be Commenced Now.

The common asparagus beetle needs no description other than the illustration given herewith from a drawing by F. H. Chittenden, United States department of agriculture. It is not practical to spray old beds from which asparagus is being cut for the destruction of this pest. The beetles cluster upon the young shoots just as they are coming through the ground; even at times going below the surface, attacking the young plants. In old beds, several stalks should be permitted to stand in each row at intervals of about two rods. These stalks throw out leaves and the beetles concentrate upon them, feed for a short time, and then deposit their eggs. These trap plants can be sprayed thoroughly with paris green and water at the rate of four ounces in 40 gallons. The poison can be applied dry by mixing one pound of paris green in 100 pounds of common flour or land plaster.

The insects attacking young buds should be collected by hand at first. A couple of small boys with tin pails or pans containing about one pint of water and a teacupful of kerosene can catch the beetles by bending the young plants over the vessel and shaking them slightly, care being taken not to break them off. As soon as the plants begin to leaf out, they can be sprayed or dusted with paris green. If the young larvae or worms are brushed off on the dry, hot, sandy soil, during the middle of the day, many of them are destroyed.

The fight in combating this pest should begin now to save the crop both this and next year. As soon as the cutting season is over and before the old vines have become veritable breeding beds for the beetle, spray or dust thoroughly. The insects spend the winter as adults and hide any place they can find protection. If, therefore, the early and late broods are destroyed, the greatest number of them can be prevented from reaching maturity. If the first brood now depositing its eggs is fought persistently, the second generation will not be so difficult to handle. If both broods are allowed to breed without any attempt to destroy them, next year's asparagus crop will be in great danger.—Orange Judd Farmer.

RAIN AND SUNSHINE.

Scientists Claim They Are the Determining Factors in Flavoring Berries and Melons.

There are years when fruit has not the flavor usually belonging to it. Especially is this the case with strawberries and melons. On investigation it is found that rainfall and sunshine are the principal factors in determining flavors. In very wet seasons fruits grow large, but contain little sugar. In dry seasons much more sugar is elaborated, and this sugar enters very largely into the indefinable something we call flavor. Prof. Troop, of Indiana, touching on the same subject, says: "An excessive amount of rain is undoubtedly one of the chief causes of trouble. It is a well-known fact that during a very wet season strawberries are of much poorer quality, containing a less amout of sugar, than when the ripening season is comparatively dry. The same is true with muskmelons; the crop may be larger during a wet season, the fruit may be finer in appearance, but the sugar content which gives the melon its delicious flavor is comparatively low. Hence it frequently happens that a variety may give good satisfaction one season, and be very unsatisfactory the next. Thorough drainage, either naturally or artificially, will do much toward preventing trouble from this source. The use of fertilizers, rich in potash and phosphoric acid, will have a tendency to produce a fruit of high quality." It is doubtless true that selection of varieties for planting will do much to give flavor, even in a wet season.

The Fruit Bark Beetle.

A pest discussed at some length in a recent New York bulletin is the fruit bark beetle. This was especially prevalent last season and did much damage in peach orchards in western New York, and in some scattered plum and cherry plantations. On peaches its principal injury was due to punctures of the bark on the trunk and larger limbs, through which the sap oozed and formed gummy excrescences. On plum and cherry, however, more injury was done by punctures in the twigs, causing death of the foliage. The natural home of this insect is in dead bark, so all brush piles and dead trees should be removed from the orchards. Caustic washes upon trunks and branches serve as a preventive measure, and cutting off and burning the infested twigs destroys many of the beetles.

USE OF PETROLEUM.

Experience Shows That It Often Destroys Trees as Well as the Insects That Infest Them.

The varying and sometimes disastrous results obtained from the use of refined petroleum on growing trees as an insecticide, and especially against the San Jose scale, have led to the suspicion that the crude product might be less variable and drastic in its effects. But so far as it has been used it would appear that we have yet much to learn before we can with safety recommend the application of the crude product to the different varieties of fruit trees. That it is efficient in destroying the San Jose scale if it is brought in contact with this insect seems now quite probable. But the hundreds of dead trees that mark the areas where it has been indiscriminately used, point very clearly to the fact that great caution is necessary, and no one is, as yet, able to say just where safety ceases and danger begins. Then, too, when no permanent injury is apparent, as in the case of the seedling apples on the ground of the Ohio agricultural experiment station, who can say that this unnatural retardation may not after the first application prove to be a menace to the life or general vigor of the tree? It is well known that, in nature, these retardations sometimes occur, but nature seldom, if ever, covers the bark of a tree or shrub, and then only in part, with vegetable growths like lichens, and even these are known to be detrimental, a smooth, clean bark being always desirable. In the use of refined petroleum one of the most perplexing phenomenon observed was the fact that equally careful applications, made by the same person, with the same grade of oil, would give almost opposite results. Here recommendation of the refined product for general use has, in many cases, resulted disastrously and brought no little disrepute to the entomological fraternity of this country. The most that can now be said for the refined product is that a ten to twenty per cent. mixture with water constitutes a fairly successful summer wash and destroys the young scale, thereby checking the increase and spread until applications of whale oil soap mixtures can be made.—Prof. F. M. Webster, in Farmers' Review.

GOOD CALF MUZZLE.

A Very Simple and Inexpensive Contrivance Which Does Its Work Thoroughly.

A simple and a good calf muzzle is made by taking a scantling, a, 3 by 3 by 14 inches; bore an inch hole about 1½ inches from each end. Turn scantling over and bore two more holes two inches from each end. Take a small stick of about one inch or little larger and make a bow to go over the calf's neck. For the horns, b b, take two good seasoned pieces of wood about 14 inches long, make them round and sharp pointed at one end, and insert the other end in the holes bored in the scantling. Then place the muzzle on calf, take a string and tie over calf's nose, and you have a good muzzle complete.—C. P. Wood, in Farm and Home.

TIMELY DAIRY NOTES.

Milk at the same time every day. Milk thoroughly to the last drop, because the last milk is the best. Always keep the hands clean, and also the cow's udder and dairy utensils.

To milk young, restive cows, raise one of the fore feet. Never strike them.

Milk with four fingers, and not with index and thumb, a fault too common with milkers.

Let there be exact system in all movements about the dairy. Do not delay straining the milk until the cream has begun to rise again more slowly.

The farmer who makes the dairy his main business, rather than an adjunct, is the one who will turn out the best product, and procure the most profit and satisfaction.—Rural World.

A Point Worth Considering.

A close observer has well said that "birds have different tastes from men; as a rule they prefer bitter, sour or insipid fruit. We should never destroy such species as the wild cherry, wild grape, elder, blackbery, juneberry, mulberry, dogwood, Virginia creeper, buckthorn, sumach, bittersweet and others. By encouraging such plants we are approaching a solution of the problem, that will preserve for our own benefit both the cultivated fruit and the birds." This is a point that we think many people have overlooked. Where birds are most destructive is in localities where no food exists other than that growing in the farmer's garden.

Why Pulverization Pays.

The chief supply of drink to growing plants is moisture brought up from below by capillary action, and therein consists the necessity of pulverizing the soil thoroughly before planting, and continuous surface cultivation afterward. Weeds are sometimes counted as a blessing because their presence compels the farmer to continue really necessary cultivation, which he might otherwise feel justified in omitting to the detriment of the crop.—Midland Farmer.

SPORT IN WESTERN CANADA.

While the Farmer's Grain Is Ripening and His Stock Growing Fat, He May Have Plenty of Shooting.

There is probably no country on the American Continent where the life of the farmer carries with it that assurance of comfort and success as does Western Canada. Nor is there to be found anywhere else such a pleasant combination. Game abounds everywhere and nowhere does it afford such perfect amusement. A noted sportsman writing of the favorite pastime says: "There is one particular spot where I saw a man drop 70 mallards one morning, and bring them all to bag, too, for they dropped in open water or on flat prairie. At the right season of the year you can see black lines and triangles cut sharply out against the sky all round you, moving very swiftly, and you begin to wonder whether you have enough cartridges to hold out. You can hear the prairie-chicken crowing like barndoor fowls; and a little to the northeast is a bit of marshy ground, cattle poached, and dappled with gleaming pools, where the snipe are nearly as thick as mosquitoes. A thin column of blue smoke curling up in the distance shows you where a few wandering Indians have pitched their camp, but there is no other indication of civilization in sight. Still, the neighborhood is well-settled, and a short drive will bring you to a farmhouse where you can buy the finest butter and the freshest eggs for uncivilized prices.

"A very short railway journey will bring you to a country full of deer and the lordly wapiti, the king of the deer tribe the world over; and down on the flat, boggy land by the lake shores the moose will stand knee-deep in water on the summer evenings, ready to lie down when the flies get bothering. All day you breathe the wild free air of the prairie, and at night you are lulled to sleep by the surge and ripple and splash of the waves on the beach, broken now and then by the weird banshee-cry of strange water-fowl." Particulars regarding settlement of the lands of Western Canada can be had from any agent of the Canadian Government, whose advertisement appears elsewhere in your columns.

A REMARKABLE RECOVERY.

Young Man's Back, Broken at a Dance, Operated On Successfully by a Surgeon.

While dancing at Glendale, L. I., last August Joseph Lennon fell from the platform and injured his back. He was sent to the hospital at Jamaica, where three vertrbrae of his spinal column were operated on. Lennon rallied after the operation, but while he could read and talk he had no control over either his arms or legs. Before Dr. Herbert K. Noble performed the operation he performed a similar one on a dead body. It took him four hours to remove the broken portions of bone from Lennon's spine.

A few weeks after the operation Lennon was able to sit up in bed, and in February he was able to move his toes a little. Gradually he has recovered the use of all his limbs, and about the middle of March he was able to stand up. Gradually he gained until he could stand alone, and last Monday he took four steps alone. Since then he has walked the entire length of the ward alone.

WHEN THE DEAD AWAKE.

Some Strange Instances in Which Corpses Have Seemed to Feign Life.

Live persons have feigned death with marvelous exactness, but when the dead feign life, or seem to feign life, the spectacle is as grewsome as can well be imagined.

Not long ago a Russian cemetery was the scene of as weird a wedding as ever has been witnessed, says a London paper. A young girl who had been betrothed died on the eve of her marriage, and her friends decided that, in spite of the intervening hand of death, the marriage ceremony should be carried on, and the ceremony was performed at the side of the grave, and after the marriage the body was returned to the coffin and lowered to its long resting place.

It is less than a year ago that a valuable cup was won in a bicycle race in Australia by a man who was dead when he passed the winning post. The race took place at an "electric light carnival," so called, in the presence of 10,000 spectators. In the last lap James Somerville, a rider, forged to the front and secured such a lead that his victory was assured. When within 25 yards of the finish he was seen to relax his hold on the handle bar and to relax his hold on the pedals. He did not fall from the machine, however, and amid frantic cheers dashed by the goal, winning the race by half a wheel. As he passed the finishing post he pitched forward and fell to the ground. When he was picked up he was found to be dead, and, what was more, the doctors declared that death had come to him when he was seen to lose his hold on the handle bars. It was a dead body that had ridden the last 25 yards of the race.

On a recent voyage the sealing schooner Arietis was cruising about 200 miles off the coast of British Columbia, when she sighted a dismantled ship. The Arietis bore down upon the derelict, and as she got near enough a man was seen on board grasping the wheel and apparently steering the craft. No other sign of man was seen on the ship. The man at the wheel was hailed, but returned no answer—just stood there grasping the spokes of the wheel and looking straight ahead. A boat was lowered and the mysterious ship boarded. When they came close to the man at the wheel they saw with horror that he was dead and had evidently been dead for many days. The ship, which was named the General Siglin, had sailed from San Francisco for Alaska. She had clearly been dismantled in a gale and then abandoned by her crew. The captain had refused to leave the ship, and, finding his strength failing, he had lashed himself to the wheel and literally died at his post, steering the craft for hundreds of miles with hands that held the wheel in as firm a grip as when alive.

Fodder Tree from the Adriatic.

From the island of Lissa, in the Adriatic, agents of the agricultural department sent cuttings of St. John's bread, which is a leguminous tree, suited for rather dry, calcareous soils in the southern states, Porto Rico and Hawaii. It is a fodder tree, yielding immense quantities of pods, which are shipped and sold for cattle feed and which are also used by brewers and distillers. The tree commences to bear when it is 15 years old and yields from 450 to 650 pounds of pod per tree. On the island of Lissa the bearing tree yields pods to the value of from $5.50 to $8.50 per annum.—N. Y. Sun.

Altogether Too Earnest.

"Avoid him," said the girl in blue.

"Why?" asked the girl in gray.

"He's too earnest and too unsophisticated," answered the girl in blue. "Why, he's the kind of a man who will ruin what might be a lovely summer resort flirtation by proposing to you within the first two weeks of the season."—Chicago Post.

How Mothers may Help their Daughters into Womanhood

Every mother possesses information of vital value to her young daughter. That daughter is a precious legacy, and the responsibility for her future is largely in the hands of the mother. The mysterious change that develops the thoughtless girl into the thoughtful woman should find the mother on the watch day and night. As she cares for the physical well-being of her daughter, so will the woman be, and her children also.

When the young girl's thoughts become sluggish, when she experiences headaches, dizziness, faintness, and exhibits an abnormal disposition to sleep, pains in the back and lower limbs, eyes dim, desire for solitude, and a dislike for the society of other girls, when she is a mystery to herself and friends, then the mother should go to her aid promptly. At such a time the greatest aid to nature is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It prepares the young system for the coming change, and is the surest reliance in this hour of trial.

The following letters from Miss Good are practical proof of Mrs. Pinkham's efficient advice to young women.

Miss Good asks Mrs. Pinkham for Help.

June 12th, 1899.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been very much bothered for some time with my monthly periods being irregular. I will tell you all about it, and put myself in your care, for I have heard so much of you. Each month menstruation would become less and less, until it entirely stopped for six months, and now it has stopped again. I have become very nervous and of a very bad color. I am a young girl and have always had to work very hard. I would be very much pleased if you would tell me what to do."—MISS PEARL GOOD, Cor. 29th Avenue and Yeslar Way, Seattle, Wash.

MISS PEARL GOOD

The Happy Result.

February 10th, 1900.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough. It is just simply wonderful the change your medicine has made in me. I feel like another person. My work is now a pleasure to me, while before using your medicine it was a burden. To-day I am a healthy and happy girl. I think if more women would use your Vegetable Compound there would be less suffering in the world. I cannot express the relief I have experienced by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—MISS PEARL GOOD, Cor. 29th Avenue and Yeslar Way, Seattle, Wash.

$5000 REWARD Owing to the fact that some skeptical people have from time to time questioned the genuineness of the testimonial letters we are constantly publishing, we have deposited with the National City Bank, of Lynn, Mass., $5,000, which will be paid to any person who can show that the above testimonial is not genuine, or was published before obtaining the writer's special permission.—LYDIA E. Worms

CASCARETS are a sure cure for tape worms and those other pests of worms that make the lives of children and their mothers miserable. Any variety of parasites that live in the human stomach or bowels, and feed on the substance which should properly nourish the body, are dislodged by Cascarets Candy Cathartic, and expelled. One or two tablets usually drive them out, and persistent use is sure to do away with the unwelcome intruders. Many children and older people suffer from worms without knowing it, and get thin and weak, although their appetite is good. The best way to find out is to take Cascarets. Never accept a substitute!

"A tape worm eighteen feet long at least came on the scene after my taking two CASCARETS. This I am sure has caused my bad health for the past three years. I am still taking Cascarets, the only cathartic worthy of notice by sensible people."
GEO. W. BOWLES, Baird, Miss.

Failure

in life is more often due to exhausted nerve force than to lack of capital.
Strong nerves are the capital that helps men conquer conditions.
When people lose their capital they set to work to regain it.
When we lose our nerve force we ought to seek a means of getting it back. There is a way, certain and scientific.
